Greetings!

I am writing to apply for the position of Software Developer. I believe my background experience and professional knowledge make me a qualified candidate for the position.

Equipped with a Bachelor's Degree in Computer Science from Kennesaw State University, GA, I continue further study of Master's Degree in the same major in Georgia State University, GA last spring. The scope of my duties encompassed databases security, cloud systems, mobile development, human-computer interaction, web programming, visualization, cross-platform communication.

A cheerful disposition, can-do attitude, and interpersonal ability make me a strong candidate for the advertised position and I am certain that my experience and industry exposure will add value to the group and company.

I am always eager to learn more about new technologies, reading up on these topics on my own time to become more knowledgeable. That is also the reason inspires me to participate as many projects and research groups as I can which produces a positive influence upon study and discovery. I would love to bring this passion for inspiration and innovation to the group and company. I'm happy to make progress every day!

Please see enclosed a copy of my resume which contains more details of professional skills, project descriptions, awards and papers.

Thank you very much for considering me for the above-mentioned vacancy. A meeting to discuss with you further my acumen and aspirations will be appreciated.

Looking forward to your favorable reply.

Yours faithfully,
